SOCIETY

Tuesday proved a gala day at the Chain O' Lakes Country club, the golf links being fairly alive all day with the brilliant colored sweaters of the many players who had come from Niles, Buchanan, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Elkhart, Goshen and Laporte, in reply to the invitation extended by the local women to participate in the first invitation tournament of the season. There were 32 representatives from out of town on the links and about 40 other guests from away were entertained with bridge in the grill as the day was too cool for the tables to be placed on the terrace as planned. Tea was served late in the afternoon in the grill by Mrs. E. J. Lent, Mrs. John Griffin and Mrs. Rudolph Horst. The tea table was made very attractive with clusters of yellow daisies. The tournament committee included Mrs. Frank Whitehall, chairman, Mrs. Harvey Rooters, Mrs. John F. Reynolds, Jr., Mrs. Harry Schadt and Mrs. Laura Harris. Mrs. Willoughby Morrison added to her laurels of last year by securing the first prize in Class A, at golf, and Miss Laura Harris won the first prize in Class B. At bridge Mrs. A. Boothby, of St. Joseph, Mich., won the first favor and Mrs. Victor Jones the second.

Between the hours of 6 and 6, Mrs. Harry A. Biggs received 65 guests at the club, the affair being given to introduce Mrs. Harry B. Harper, formerly of Philadelphia, who has recently become a resident of this city. Mrs. Biggs wore a simple gown of white canton crepe and a green garden hat. Mrs. Harper wore a smart embroidered gown of white canton crepe with a touch of jade green. Her small hat was of white. Mrs. George L. O'Brien and Miss Catherine Conoley assisted and Mrs. N. L. Feltes and Mrs. C. A. Lippincott presided at the tea tables, which were placed on the east veranda, under canopies of greenery. Quantities of garden flowers and an electric fountain added greatly to the charm of the affair. Denny's three piece orchestra played during the receiving hours. Among the guests were Mrs. Hans Erik, who is the guest of Mrs. W. K. McHenry, Mrs. Norman Williams, of Los Angeles, Cal., the house guest of Mrs. William K. Lampert, Mrs. H. I. Parke and Mrs. Frank Parke, of Kendallville, Ind., who are the guests of Mrs. Metta Hickox.

Mrs. Frank Schumacher, 706 Rex st., entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon Tuesday as a courtesy to her houseguest, Miss Catherine Wolfe, of Logansport, Ind. Clusters of pink and white garden flowers in tall crystal vases graced the table at which were seated, Miss Wolfe, Mrs. Theodore Koehler, Mrs. Charles Metz, Mrs. Clarence Snook, Mrs. Frank Eby, Mrs. Wilbur Waters and Mrs. Frank Vurpillat. The afternoon was spent informally.

The members of the Phi Sigma sorority were entertained at a 7 o'clock dinner Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Evelyn Palmer, 1228 S. Mich. st. Garden flowers graced the table at which covers were placed for 21 guests. After a short business meeting the evening was spent playing bridge. On the evening of June 21 the sorority will give a 6 o'clock dinner at the home of Mrs. Howard Cranfill, 608 Cleveland av.

Mrs. W. M. Schaefer, 527 Lincoln way E., will entertain the members of the Brodbeck-McEndarfer bridal party at a 6 o'clock dinner next Tuesday evening.

Honoring Mrs. J. A. McElree of California who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. L. W. McGinn, Mrs. Lew Fleming entertained Tuesday afternoon with an afternoon bridge. Garden flowers were used effectively for the decorations of the house. The afternoon was spent at the bridge tables and ten favors were awarded to the winners. After the game a two course luncheon was served to 40 guests at small tables graced with bouquets of pink and white garden flowers. A guest favor

SIGNS

By Juanita Hamel

HAVE you ever chuckled at you noted how the persons seated in a street-car sometimes "match" the advertisements above them? Has there come to your lips a whimsical smile as you beheld persons standing in front of a billboard whose picture seemed a comment or a prophecy especially made for them? One may not necessarily believe in such signs and yet there really are some instances when the coincidence seems absolutely perfect.

was given to Mrs. McElwhee.

Honoring the South Benders who are leaving soon for Europe, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Bryan, delightfully entertained at a neighborhood party last evening at their home, 1325 E. Jefferson Blvd. Plans were made for a picnic supper in the garden, but owing to the sudden change in the weather, a buffet supper was enjoyed in the house and the guests spent the evening informally.

Miss Mary Louise Werner, Portage av., was houseguest Tuesday afternoon at a garden party honoring her cousin, Miss Frances Werner of LaPaz, Ind. Fourteen guests spent the afternoon with games and contests and at its close a buffet luncheon was served. The guest favors were heart-shaped boxes of bonbons.

The Idle Hour club was entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Brodbeck, 608 Leland av. The afternoon was spent socially and the favor of the contest was won by Mrs. Ray Littleton. A buffet luncheon was served to 14 guests. In two weeks the club will meet with Mrs. Edith Miller, 718 S. Michigan st.

The Health Sewing club of the South Bend High school will meet at the home of Miss Ruth Smetzer, 1127 E. Haney av., at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Miss Lydia Rose entertained at dinner Monday evening as a courtesy to her houseguest, Miss Pearl Lowry of Chicago. Garden flowers were used for the attractive table decoration. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Maus, Miss Genevieve Hardy, Miss Melitta Rose, Miss Benner Maus, Paul Kelly, Harry Hoffman, John Andrus. Following dinner the guests attended the dance at the high school.

Honoring Miss Gertrude Brodbeck.

whose marriage will take place this month, Miss Ruth Staples was hostess to seven guests for luncheon at the Robertson Tea room at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Vari-colored sweet peas formed the center decoration for the luncheon table and a corsage of sweet peas and forget-me-nots marked the place of the honor guest. Seated with the hostess were Miss Brodbeck, Miss Ruth Kuss, Miss Helen Gail, Mrs. Joseph Haur, Mrs. Robert Perkey and Mrs. George Marohn.

The members of the Junior class of St. Joseph's academy entertained the members of the Senior class at a theater party at the Blackstone Monday afternoon, followed by tea at 4 o'clock at the Robertson Tea room. Places were laid for nine guests.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Rachel Seifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Seifer, 1227 Calvert st., this city, and Harold Neib, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Neib of Niles, Mich., which took place Saturday morning in the newly furnished home of the bride and groom at 400 Sheridan av., Niles. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Shurman, pastor of the Evangelical church of Niles in the presence of the immediate families. The bride's gown was of navy blue tulle and she wore a corsage of Killarney roses. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Neib left for a short trip to Detroit and will be at home after June 15.

The regular meeting of the Baran-class of the First Evangelical church was held Monday evening at the church and was in the nature of a farewell to E. Wayne Stahl, the teacher of the class who leaves soon to attend summer school. Thirteen guests enjoyed the social hour following the business session at which time plans were made to continue the individual membership drive. Plans were also made for a series of indoor games, which will be held at the Y. M. C. A.

Miss Margaret McGowan of Everett, Wash., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McGowan, N. Main st. Miss McGowan will leave soon for a four months European trip with the Misses Peggy Clough, Genevieve Wolton, Lorine Clough and Gertrude Weaver.

Mrs. Harry A. Parke and Mrs. Frank Parke of Kendallville, Ind., are guests of Mrs. Metta Hickox of N. Taylor st.

Mrs. Norman Williams of Los Angeles, Calif., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Lampert, W. Washington av.

Miss Frances Werner of LaPaz, Ind., who has been the guest of Miss Mary Louise Werner, Portage av., left this morning for Chicago where she will spend a few days before returning to her home.

Dr. J. W. Hill, Miss Florence Hill and Miss Margaret Hill were among the South Benders who left for the Shriner convention at San Francisco.

Mrs. C. E. Haile of Evanston, Ill., who has been the guest since Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Ingelright, 369 Fulton st., has returned to her home.

Miss Jeanette Wagner, 416 N. Michigan st., has returned from Milwaukee Downer college at Milwaukee, Wis., to spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Ingersoll will leave Wednesday on a motor trip to Oberlin, O., where they will attend the commencement exercises of Oberlin college and the reunion of the class of 1891, of which Mr. Ingersoll was a member.

UNCLE WIGGILY

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE ACORN BIRD.
BY HOWARD E. GARIS.

Once upon a time, when Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, not far from his hollow stump bungalow, he heard a noise something like this:

"Who-who-who! Hoot! Hoot! Hoot!"

"Oh, ho! An owl!" thought Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I wonder if this is the wise owl bird, or the owl who taught little Posy Wideawake how to go to sleep?"

Uncle Wiggily looked up into the trees, but saw no owl, though the noise sounded again:

"Who! Who! Hoot!"

"I say, Mr. Owl! Where are you?" cried Uncle Wiggily, for it was his friend the Wise Bird the bunny wished to see him.

A voice answered, saying:

"I am not an owl, though at certain times I hoot like one."

"Who are you then—what sort of a bird?" asked Uncle Wiggily, for he knew the voice to be that of a feathered creature.

"I am the Band Tailed Pigeon," was the answer. "And will you please tell me where I can find some acorns?"

"Are you also called the Acorn Bird?" asked the bunny, who was trying to learn as much as he could about the birds.

"Well, you may call me that if you wish," said the bird, "though Band Tailed Pigeon is my more common name."

"Do you carry around on your tail a band to play music?" asked the bunny, in a somewhat joking way as he twinkled his pink nose.

"No," answered the Acorn Bird, "the only band I have on my tail is a band of feathers. That is how I get my name," and the bird, which was of soft gray color, with a pinkish head and neck, on the back of which were some olive green feathers, flew closer to the bunny.

"Oh, how very kind," cooed the Band Tailed Pigeon. So Uncle Wiggily hopped off through the woods to call the Bushytail boys, who soon came scampering along to show the new bird where to find acorns.

"I'll get my wife," hooted the Pigeon. "She is very fond of acorns, also." And a little later Uncle Wiggily and the squirrel boys watched the two pigeons picking up acorns from the ground, swallowing the shiny brown nuts as fast as they could take them in their beaks.

"Don't you chew them?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he saw the birds swallow acorn after acorn, without making a single bite.

"Our bills are too soft to allow us to chew the hard shells of the acorns," said the gentleman Pigeon. "But we can swallow them whole, and they give us no trouble. Though you mustn't do that," and he looked at Johnnie and Billie.

"Oh, we always crack and chew the nuts we eat!" chattered the squirrel boys.

The Band Tailed Pigeons were kept busy picking up acorns, and they ate so many that soon they were quite filled up, and this was not impolite or greedy of them, for it was intended that they should eat in this way.

"There are lots of acorns left on the ground," said Mrs. Pigeon, when she could eat no more.

"Yes, and we shall be hungry for them tomorrow," cooed her husband. "I wish we could take some to our nest."

"I'll fix it so you may do that," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "Come on, Johnnie and Billie! We'll make a box of birch bark so the birds can carry some acorns away with them."

"This was soon done, and just as the Band Tailed Pigeons were about to fly away with the birch box of acorns carried between them, all of a sudden the Bob Cat sprang out of the bushes and tried to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears.

"But, well, soon make you go away!" cried the squirrel boys.

"Come on, Uncle Wiggily! help us throw acorns at the Bob Cat!"

"And we'll help also!" cooed the Pigeons. Soon they were all throwing the hard acorns at the bad Bob Cat. The nuts hit him on the end of his soft and tender nose so that he howled and ran away crying:

"Oh, I'll be good! I'll be good! I won't nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears! And he didn't do any nibbling—at least, not that day."

The Pigeons had all the acorns they wished to eat and every one was happy except, perhaps, the Bob Cat, and he didn't deserve to be. And if the window curtain doesn't roll out on the porch roof to look at the cat playing hop scotch with the policemen, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the girl bird.

Revelations of A Wife

ADEL GARRISON

THE WAY MADGE STOLE A MARCH ON DICKY

If I had struck Dicky a vicious blow in the face I don't believe I could have more effectively banished the dancing laughter from his face and eyes than I did by my icy rejoinder to his banter concerning my projected journey to bring Katie back.

The better part of my nature urged me to try out an apology for my hasty words, but the memory of the unjust criticism of me Dicky had uttered at the time of his mother's accident chilled any generous impulse toward him, and made me instead wickedly rejoice in the anger I saw leap to his face.

"If I had such a case of ingrowing ego as affects you," he snarled, "I'll be blistered if I wouldn't go and jump into the bay to get rid of it. I don't believe there's anything in the world could happen awful enough to make you forget your own feelings."

"You're always running around with a tape-measure and a measuring spoon trying to see whether you get your just need of praise and consideration. Mother gets a fall that might have put her out of business for all time, and because in my excitement I let drop a word or two that are sufficiently laudatory, you immediately depart for the polar regions, and throw up an ice barrier. I should think you'd—"

Dicky's angry "Pardon me," I interrupted, with a frigidity that justified the statement he had just made, "but I have a good deal to do before I can start after Katie, so I wish you would give me some idea of how long you mean this lecture to last. I am, of course, desirous of listening as long as I can, but—"

"Oh, go to the devil!" Dicky snarled and flung himself out of the room angrily, while with the perversity which only a woman knows, I first laughed with malicious glee at the excess of my baiting, then felt my eyes fill with tears of regret as my mean little folly.

That I had succeeded in thoroughly angering him I realized as the evening wore away, rather galled away—while I made my preparations for the earliest possible start the next day. Dicky devoted himself to his mother, although there was little to do but watch her, for she was so feeble and so worried that I had never the time nor the inclination to attempt to change his attitude. All my thoughts were centered upon my coming excursion with its chances of success so overwhelmingly against me.

"Stop the Car!"

One by one the items on the list of things that must be adjusted before leaving were crossed off. Mrs. Ticer, hurriedly summoned, announced her perfect willingness to transfer Jerry, the redoubtable Sam and herself to our menage until I returned. Marion was in the seventh heaven of delight at being entrusted with the care of Junior, and I knew that never young monarch would have so devoted a slave, knew, also, that Lillian's loving supervision would be all over the child. That Mother Graham was safe in the care of those same capable hands, while Dicky's more or less erratic attempts to help would also be made of use by Lillian I also knew. So, at last, the final detail completed, and with small bag packed for my journey, I lay down to a few hours' sleep before time to go to the train.

I intended to drive my own car to the train taking Jerry with me to drive it back. But when I rose from the substantial breakfast which Mrs. Ticer had prepared, and went out on the veranda, I found Dicky's car, with Dicky himself at the wheel, standing by the steps. He was waiting for me, and the tonneau door was open, indicating that he did not intend me to ride on the seat with him, so that I knew he was still angry. But my heart leaped at the knowledge that Dicky would not permit me to go to the station without him.

With conjugal clairvoyance I also knew that he was as anxious as I to make up to me that he had been compromised with his tenderness in the leaving of the tonneau door open. With the eyes of the Tickers and Lillian upon me, however—for they were all upon the veranda to bid me good-by—I could do nothing but put my bag into the tonneau, and prepare to get in myself.

"Hurry!" Dicky commanded curtly. "You've just time to make the train."

I obeyed him and the machine had leaped forward before I had closed the door. I knew that he had mistaken the time, and I guessed that he had done so intentionally that he might have an excuse for not alighting and helping me into the car, his invariable courteous custom. But I held no rancor for this, and I determined that even if I missed that first train I would not let our quarrel stand a second longer than necessary. So as soon as we were well out of sight of the house I uttered a little exclamation of dismay.

"Stop the car, Dicky!" I exclaimed. "I dropped my glove!"

He obeyed, but did not turn around. So I clambered out of the tonneau, then with a quick movement swung open the front door, climbed in beside him, reached past him, and turned off the ignition switch, smiling with meaningful enury tenderness at him as I did so.
